

PRESS RELEASE

AUGUST 14, 2007

W.S. Wilson Corporation and Hypercoat Establish Singapore Product Support Center.

New York based W.S. Wilson Corporation and Singapore's Hypercoat Enterprises are partnering to open a product distribution center in Singapore. The operation will be a wholly owned W.S. Wilson subsidiary, W.S. Wilson Asia Pte. Ltd. The formation of the Singapore Product Support Center was dictated by the fast growing Southeast Asian aerospace market and, specifically, customer demands for local inventory and an improved ability to address AOG requirements. The operation will provide an inventory of a variety of bearings, rod-ends, and bushings and a platform from which to explore and implement innovative ways of product support simplifying the supply chain process for the airlines and MRO operations in the area.

W.S. Wilson Corporation is a major bearing supplier to the Boeing Company, airline and MRO operators globally.

Hypercoat Enterprises Pte. Ltd. has been in the aviation business since 1985. Hypercoat represents select premier companies and is a multi-national company with operations and offices worldwide.
